The Spirit of Tommy Toothbrush

By Paul Dale Roberts, Halo Paranormal Investigation

On November 23, I received a phone call from Marina and David of Rancho Cordova, California, asking for help. Marina explained that for the past six months, she had been experiencing paranormal activity in her apartment.

Marina and David tried to ignore it, but things got worse. In fact, they requested that our team investigate and cleanse the property.

Unusual Paranormal Activity

I met with Marina and David to discuss the paranormal activity in more detail. They said that at all hours of the night, almost every night, they would hear someone in their bathroom brushing their teeth. The activity usually happened between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. But when they went to e bathroom to investigate, the noise stopped.

One night, Marina was awakened by the sound of someone brushing their teeth. She jumped out of bed and ran to the bathroom. What she saw next shocked her. It was, indeed, an apparition of a man brushing his teeth, and his gums were bleeding profusely.

Marina screamed in horror, as she couldn't believe what she was seeing. David heard Marina screaming, jumped out of bed, and ran to the bathroom. But the apparition had already vanished.

On another night, while David was working late, Marina was at the apartment by herself watching TV. She, again, began to hear the sound of someone brushing their teeth.

Marina looked behind her, and it was the man who she saw previously brushing his teeth. He was watching her with blood dripping from his mouth.

Marina screamed at the top of her lungs and managed to get on the phone with David, asking him to come home immediately. David rushed home, but there was no more paranormal activity that night.

The next day, Marina started her own investigation and decided to talk with her neighbors. She learned that a man named Tommy previously lived in her apartment. Tommy was a maintenance man.

The neighbor told Marina that Tommy did complain about having two loose teeth, but he didn't have the money to go to a dentist. Tommy would say that he was in pain a lot. The neighbor also told Marina that Tommy eventually died in the apartment from colon cancer. He was in his mid-50s.

Tommy was, apparently, somewhat of a loner and didn't socialize that much with his neighbors. One neighbor said they thought Tommy was "weird."

The event that was the last straw for Marina was when she was taking a shower and noticed that there were two large handprints on the transparent, glass shower door. Marina felt Tommy was watching her as she showered. This was enough for Marina, and that is when she decided to call me.

The Investigation

I conducted the investigation myself, as the apartment was quite small. When I got to the apartment, I did an EVP sweep. I went into the bedroom, living room, and bathroom and conducted about six EVP sessions in each room.

While in the bathroom, the fourth EVP session was a success. I actually got an EVP of what sounds like someone brushing their teeth. When this was happening, my EMF Teddy bear started buzzing.

I did not get any disembodied voices on my digital recorder. Marina and David verified that the brushing sound was the sound they would hear in their apartment at night. After my investigation was over, I conducted a Roman Catholic house blessing.

The Follow-up

A few days later, I talked with Marina and David on the phone. Marina reported being very happy with the cleansing. She and David said they had been sleeping well at night, and there were no intrusive noises in the middle of the night.

They said they felt that Tommy went into the light after my cleansing.

Tommy Toothbrush, as I call him, has finally moved on.◆
